Tomb KV1, located in the Valley of the Kings in Egypt, was used for the burial of Pharaoh Ramesses VII of the Twentieth Dynasty. Although it has been open since antiquity, it was only properly investigated and cleared by Edwin Brock in 1984 and 1985. The single corridor tomb itself is located in Luxor's West Bank, and is small in comparison to other tombs of the twentieth dynasty.

La découverte. Le 10 octobre 1817, Belzoni a pu pénétrer pour la première fois dans le tombeau de Ramsès I er. Le 16 octobre 1817, par instinct, il donne l'ordre de creuser à quelque distance, là où une ravine est habituellement remplie par les eaux de pluie. Quarante-huit heures plus tard, il découvre que la roche a été taillée pour former une ouverture.
